

VEGAS LEX DISCUSSES POWER SUPPLY CONTRACTS AT NATIONAL SERIES OF ENERGY SEMINARS

VEGAS LEX has taken part in the 23rd National Series of Energy Seminars, New Stage in the Development of Electricity Markets in 2017–2019: Effective Operation and Interaction of Market Participants under the New Legislation.

On December 1, 2016, Moscow hosted the 23rd National Series of Energy Seminars, *New Stage in the Development of Electricity Markets in 2017–2019: Effective Operation and Interaction of Market Participants under the New Legislation. Alexander Kiselev, associate at VEGAS LEX Energy practice, elaborated on current issues of applying the regulations in the power supply industry.

Mr. Kiselev spoke about the new judicial practice developed as a result of the existing electricity supply contracts in the connected networks; the land law reform and the ownership of linear facilities such as electrical networks; the procedural specifics of considering pre-contractual disputes, tariff regulation, and measures to strengthen the payment discipline.

The National Series of Energy Seminars is an annual professional event in Russia, organized with the participation of the regulatory and supervisory authorities for the representatives of grid companies, energy consumers, industrial plants, power suppliers, heat suppliers, and generating companies. The seminars are attended by representatives of the Ministry of Energy, FAS Russia, and specialists from Russian energy companies

For more information on VEGAS LEX's services to the energy sector, please go here.