How do you as a leader keep your passion when the results are going down and you are firing staff? How do you personally as a leader deal with the changes that the crisis has brought about? And how do you “passionate” your team(s)? In an interactive way, the event aims to cover the challenges and dilemmas of today’s leaders in leading and motivating teams and individuals and in creating inspiring or engaging work climates during tough times.

What are the main struggles for leaders today and how can they be tackled? What do we know about effective crisis leaders? What lessons can we learn from the best and the worst? What pitfalls to avoid?
