Denuo strengthens its Data Protection offering

27 August 2026 – Denuo announces the appointment of Daria Zagranichnova as an International Privacy team leader. Daria joins the firm from Data Privacy Office together with her team.

Daria Zagranichnova specialises in comprehensive legal support of projects relating to data protection and the implementation of artificial intelligence. She advises companies across various jurisdictions, conducts audits, develops documentation, assesses risks, supports supervisory authority inspections, structures data flows, and prepares legal opinions on complex regulatory matters.

Daria has experience building privacy compliance frameworks both on the consulting side and in-house. She also delivers corporate data protection training and leads a team of consultants within the international data protection practice.

Daria's team holds professional certification from the International Association of Privacy Professionals (IAPP) and the Regional Privacy Professionals Association (RPPA).

Daria's team joins Denuo's existing Intellectual Property and Technology practice, which consists of 13 lawyers and two partners in the Moscow and St Petersburg offices and advises on all aspects of intellectual property and technology law, including the commercialisation of IP, the protection of rights to trademarks, patents and trade names, copyright and related rights, licensing, e-commerce, technological developments, as well as the protection of personal data and privacy.

Commenting on the new hire, Denuo's Intellectual Property and Technology practice partner Roman Golovatsky said: "The transition of Daria and her team is a significant step in executing our strategy to build a global centre of excellence for data protection. In an era of rapid regulatory change, clients are looking not just for lawyers, but for strategic partners who can support their business anywhere in the world. Daria's experience in cross-border projects and complex compliance processes will enable us to offer clients unique expertise at the intersection of multiple jurisdictions."

Daria Zagranichnova added: "For my team and me, joining Denuo represents a fundamentally new level of opportunity. We are impressed by the firm's approach to complex cross-border matters and see enormous potential to grow our practice on this platform. We are confident that combining our expertise with one of the leading law firms will deliver maximum value to clients."
