Alisa Pendyurina joins Dentons as Senior Transfer Pricing Manager

Moscow, October 25, 2019 — Alisa Pendyurina has joined Dentons' Russian Tax and Customs practice as a Senior Transfer Pricing Manager.

Before joining Dentons, Alisa headed the transfer pricing department at Rust holding and worked as a senior tax advisor at KPMG.

Alisa focuses on transfer pricing. She has extensive experience handling projects to develop transfer pricing methodologies and to prepare documentation substantiating market price conformity in various types of transactions (including transactions within Russia and foreign goods trade and services transactions, intragroup financing, borrowing, making deposits, granting rights to use intangible assets, etc.). She also has experience identifying existing transfer pricing risks and developing proposals to minimize them, including by using the mechanism of independent and symmetrical adjustments. She has handled the preparation of country-by-country reporting, including local files and master files.

Dzhangar Dzhachinov, partner and head of Dentons' Russian Tax and Customs practice says: "I am very happy that such a professional as Alisa has joined our practice. Our team is one of the few in the market that has managed to grow and evolve in a difficult economic situation. We continue to hire the best specialists to work on our clients' projects and never rest in this endeavor!"
