Firm.One strengthens its employment and immigration practice

Denis Bushnev has joined Firm.One as a partner. He brings more than 15 years of experience advising Russian and international businesses, from industrial groups to online platforms and video game developers. His practice covers employment and immigration law, sports law and data protection. He also advises on employment and data protection matters arising in M&A transactions.

Before joining the firm, Denis worked at Stonebridge Legal, Schneider Group and Baker McKenzie. He has been recognised by Best Lawyers, Pravo-300, Kommersant and Rossiyskaya Gazeta.

Denis Bushnev, Partner at Firm.One:

“What drew me to Firm.One was the opportunity to work on matters that bring together different areas of law. Executive incentive plans are a good example: employment terms, corporate structure and tax implications all need to be considered together. Clients need an arrangement that works as a whole and can be implemented in practice.”

Vladimir Sokov, Managing Partner at Firm.One:

“Denis is a talented lawyer, and we share his view of what good legal advice should do: address the client’s business objectives and offer practical solutions. Employment issues arise across many of our practice areas, including acquisitions and disputes. His experience will add to the team’s expertise and help us factor risks for employers into our advice from the outset.”

Sergey Klimenko, Managing Partner at Firm.One:

“We regularly help businesses enter the Russian market or expand internationally. Establishing a team is an essential part of that process, whether it involves local recruitment, relocating employees or hiring specialists from abroad. Denis’s international experience will help us guide clients through these steps as part of their wider expansion plans.”
