Subject: Official opening of logistic center, by Würth, in Russia

January 25, 2017

The beginning of December 2016, saw the official opening of logistic center of the German group Würth. The new 14,000m² facility is built in the Shushary industrial zone, Leningrad region, on a plot of 25,900m². The facility includes a warehouse and a service center for repair and maintenance of tools.

The warehouse is designed to simultaneously store up to 10,000 products at any time. Future plans for the site include an expansion of capacity to 40,000 products. A full range of general construction work was carried out during the construction of the logistic center, including an utility lines building and surrounding landscaping.

Tebodin's scope of work consisted of the design and construction control. In addition to the project core team, a group of construction supervision experts from Tebodin were involved in the project execution.

Project manager Sergey Kondratenko, and construction manager Andrey Bystrov, attended the opening ceremony on behalf of Tebodin. Sergey commented: 'We are proud to have been a part of the Würth project. We would like to take this opportunity to congratulate, and express our thanks to all involved parties and colleagues for their contributions and their cooperation in making this a successful project!'

The Würth Group is a worldwide wholesaler of components, consumables and professional tools for installation, maintenance and repair. The owner of the group, Mr. Reinhold Würth, was present at the opening ceremony.
