

PRESS RELEASE

New Russia headquarters at established location

Moscow, 22.11.2018 – In December 2018 SCHNEIDER GROUP is relocating its headquarters from the Bakhrushina House office complex near Paveletsky Railway Station to the “House of German Economy”. The relocation to new, modern premises is reflecting the success story the company has been leading since its foundation in 2003.

For already two decades and under a trustworthy German leadership, the “House of German Economy” is providing high class office spaces to international enterprises and associations. One of those has been the German-Russian Chamber of Commerce (AHK), which had been operating from this building located in Moscow’s historical heart from 2007 to December 2018.

“With this relocation to the ‘House of German Economy’ we are demonstrating our strong commitment to the German-Russian economic ties in particular towards our German customers”, states Ulf Schneider, Managing Partner and Founder of SCHNEIDER GROUP. The relocation furthermore constitutes an investment in the future: “Our goal is to offer our employees an optimal working space also for the coming years”, adds Schneider.

SCHNEIDER GROUP has secured the greater part of the rental space at the “House of German Economy”, and will be occupying four floors with the option of expanding its spaces. Aiming to even better cater to customers’ needs in the future, the new office will also feature a showroom, whose concept we are already working on.

Parallel to the new headquarters, SCHNEIDER GROUP is operating two additional offices in Moscow, namely at the “German Centre for Industry and Trade” and at the “Viennese House”. The company will be offering the full spectrum of its services in all three locations.

The relocation is taking place while the company is in full operation. A special ad hoc project-group has undertaken the implementation of every challenging task connected to the relocation.
