

VEGAS LEX SEMINAR ON METHODS OF ANALYZING BUSINESS CORRESPONDENCE FOR CORPORATE COMPLIANCE PURPOSES

VEGAS LEX has led a practical seminar, Business Correspondence: a methodology for reducing the risks of violating antimonopoly laws and commercial confidentiality, for legal departments and compliance specialists of companies in various industries.

On October 10, 2017, Maria Borzova, Manager of VEGAS LEX Life sciences projects, and Ksenia Podguzova, Commercial group associate, led a seminar on the basic rules and approaches to written communication to reduce antimonopoly risks and protect trade secrets.

Ms. Podguzova listed most words and phrases that might suggest violation of the law on competition and commercial confidentiality and proposed strategies for mitigating the risks on the basis of a detailed case analysis.

Ms. Borzova talked about the key rules for structuring corporate correspondence and shared a few recommendations on avoiding most common business correspondence mistakes.

The participants actively joined the discussion during the analysis of model cases, successfully applying the knowledge received during the seminar to practical situations.

We thank the participants for their active work at the seminar and will be happy to see everyone at our upcoming events.

For more information on VEGAS LEX's services in the area of antimonopoly regulation, click here.

For more information on VEGAS LEX's services to the pharmaceutical industry, please go here.