AECOM Moscow office move – Press release

AECOM, the World's premier infrastructure firm, has moved to a new office located in Delta Plaza Business centre on 1, 2nd Syromyatnicheskiy Lane, Moscow. AECOM employees, including architects, engineers, designers, planners, management and construction services professionals relocated to the new office designed by AECOM.

As Worldwide leader in the Design and Architecture sector, the new office will provide open-concept collaborative areas as well as multifunctional zones and rooms for concentration - allowing employees to use office space in a more flexible, creative and effective way. Well planned and organized space is emphasized by special design solutions.

Adapting to the new reality created by the coronavirus pandemic, AECOM has reviewed its working patterns and collaboration models to accommodate the future trends, as well as current needs and workplace requirements. The refreshed office design will also review AECOM's office safety approach and implement new solutions to ensure employees and Clients feel and are safe when visiting the office.

Roberto Cialone, Managing Director, AECOM East Europe said: "As we emerge from the current pandemic, it is vital to the business to explore and implement new and creative ways to enhance the overall employees experience, productivity and expand business growth. With more than 20 years' experience operating in the Russian market and a number of successful projects completed, our team of multidisciplinary professionals have contributed to building a strong reputation across the country. We are confident this move will further develop our business in the region and create a legacy for generations to come."

AECOM has completed around 2,000 projects in Russia, across a range of different sectors. Our footprint extends across key markets in Russia locally and over 150 countries globally – bringing together a vast pool of knowledge, creativity and technical expertise.
