Dzhangar Dzhachinov ranked among the best tax litigators by Tax Controversy Leaders 2014

Moscow, September 11, 2014 – Dzhangar Dzhachinov, partner, head of Dentons' Russian tax and customs practice, has been ranked among the leaders in tax dispute resolution in Russia by the International Tax Review.

Dzhangar Dzhachinov specializes in tax dispute resolution, advising clients on various tax issues, including drafting corporate policies to reduce tax risks (including supplier risks, marketing risks, etc.), contract risk assessments, and reviewing tax accounts to determine tax risks and overpayments. He has represented clients in more than 700 cases against the tax authorities since 2007, including before the Supreme Arbitration Court. Dzhangar has also helped clients win numerous tax disputes during the pre-court phase.

The 2014 list of Russian tax controversy leaders comprises 26 experts from consulting and law firms. The Tax Controversy Leaders rating is based on outstanding achievements by tax experts in the previous year, plus recommendations from clients and colleagues. The full list can be found on the International Tax Review website.

Dentons' Russian tax and customs practice has a team of seven lawyers and is recognized as one of Russia's finest by legal publications such as Chambers and Partners, The Legal 500, Tax Directors Handbook and World Tax. The team advises clients on a broad spectrum of matters relating to tax and customs law.
